Buy Oakley Sunglasses: Online or Traditional Stores?

This Oakley Juliet Polarized that I purchased just recently was acquired online. I am a big fan of online shopping, mainly because I am a very busy person who works online for a living. So online shopping and I are a match made in heaven.

Before, when I used to shop the traditional way, I had to deal with traffic, lack of parking space, irritated salesladies/salesmen, bumping with the hordes of shoppers also looking for bargains, etc., etc. With cybershopping I can buy Oakley sunglasses without having to face all of that.

One thing that I do not like about online shopping is that sometimes the frame color is not what it appears on screen, so I had to reorder and wait another couple of days for my final order to be delivered. Which is where traditional shopping gains an advantage over shopping online.

What I also like about buying my Oakley sunglasses online is the variety of products that I can access in a very short amount of time. I can compare which sunglasses look best, which brick and mortar stores most of the time do not offer. Due to the limited amount of physical shelf space on traditional shops, they cannot offer the range of products as wide as online stores offer them.

However, what bothers me most about shopping online is the safety of the delivery. I've had two experiences when the sunglasses I bought was damaged during delivery. But of course it is returnable, so.

With the traditional way, I can be assured that whatever damage my Oakleys sustain, it would be at a later time and I would be at fault.

Overall, I still prefer online versus traditional shopping. How about you? What are your thoughts on
